Executive Summary:

The Site is comprised of 40 acres in Freeport, Brazoria County, Texas. The facility historically was used as a barge cleaning and servicing facility and has been proposed to the National Priorities List based on evidence that hazardous substances, including semivolatile organic compounds, lead, zinc, and pesticides, have migrated from the facility to the Intracoastal Waterway and pose a threat to nearby drinking water supplies and downstream sensitive environments, and have impacted fisheries downstream of the facility.
